THE ART PROCESS

By Amy Lucena, Vice President Fidelity Arts

As the art consultant for Princess Cruises, I had the distinct privilege of working on the newest and addition to Princess Cruises fleet, the Royal Princess. The artwork advisory process from blueprint to installation for a large project is at once exciting, intimidating, and in the end, immensely satisfying.

In a collaborative effort to make this beautiful ship, Fidelity Arts worked with the Princess Cruises design team led by Teresa Anderson; Vice President of Interior Design, Brendan Reilly; Director of Architectural Services, and Rai Caluori ; Executive Vice President of Fleet Operations to create an art collection that is a match for the Royal Princess' architectural, technological and design innovations.

The process of ship building is a long and challenging one. For over eighteen months we worked with a cadre of artists on both administrative and creative presentations. These presentations range from simple sketches to computer models and are utilized to achieve a clear direction and look for each room. For example, leaded glass artisans and muralists submit many proposals and color combinations before a final design is selected.

We exhaustively examine each art item to determine the appropriate components, materials, design, and color. After pre-screening these ideas, photographs, sketches, models and samples are then presented to the team led by Teresa Anderson and Rai Caluori for their approval and input.

Teresa Anderson and I work very closely together to reiterate the importance of the smallest part that contributes to the whole – the love is truly in the details.

The Royal Princess encompasses almost every artistic medium. In her beautiful three story atrium alone there are original paintings, photographs, prints on paper, canvas and acrylic, etched mirror, sandblasted glass, cast glass, faux stone, metal work, hand laid mosaic tile, glass tile, collages and custom wall coverings.

Fidelity Arts also worked closely with GFA, the art gallery and in house auction company on board Princess Cruises, to incorporate some of their bestselling artists into the permanent collection aboard the Royal Princess.

An important technological innovation on the Royal Princess is the inclusion of a device driven Art and Architecture Tour. This tour gives passengers the opportunity to see behind the scenes into the artist's studios as well as witness the construction progress and details of architectural innovations such as the literally breathtaking Sea Walk.

Once the over 3000 art items are complete and shipped to the Fincantieri shipyards in Italy, it is time for installation. Finally. To get to this point, the project involves endless emails, shop drawings, blueprints, templates, conference calls, meetings, approvals and a tremendous amount of hard work.

The building of a cruise ship of this size is a fascinating experience-the before and after and how it all comes together in the final moments is an evolution that very few people get to witness.

When she is revealed at her christening, and you take a breath, it is an amazing moment –the birth of a Princess.

ROYAL PRINCESS

About Fidelity Arts:

Fidelity Arts is an art consulting firm that follows client projects from blueprint stage to security installation. The company handles large scale custom commissions incorporating artwork into all public and private areas.

Since its inception in 1975, Fidelity Arts has provided impeccable personal art consulting services to large and small corporate clients ensuring that, no matter the project size, the client gets exactly what is becoming to a specific space. By utilizing their extensive stable of artists working in all mediums such as works on paper, canvas murals, monumental sculptures, sandblasted glass doors and stained glass domes, Fidelity Arts creates a look that perfectly reflects the client's image.

Fidelity Arts has worked consistently and diligently to ensure that their worldwide clients are receiving quality products at the best value with the utmost in project satisfaction.

During her twenty-year art consulting career, Fidelity Arts Vice President and partner Amy Lucena has worked with hundreds of artists to provide her clients with both beautiful spaces and a transformed visual corporate image.

Amy supervises the administration, shipping, commissioning, and installation of these artwork items and more on worldwide projects and feels privileged to have lived and worked in Italy, France, Japan and the United States while beautifying some of the largest and most elegant ships sailing today.
